Flavor of India

Shared Layout

The website has a shared layout in all of its pages containing the following items:

- i) A header with a logo and navigation menu
- ii) A footer with social media links, email signup form
- iii) copyright information.

The different elements and pages on the website are as follows:

Navigation Menu

The navigation menu contains links to home page, menu, online ordering web sites, table reservation and contact information. As mentioned earlier, this navigation is present on all pages of the website.

As user clicks on each of the options, the following pages are reached:

1.Home

The home page has a carousel with images of the restaurant and some attractive food. The carousel also brings up attractive offers and special remarks to user attention. The home page has a section with the address and hours information. It also has a section with an introduction about the restaurant, type of cuisine and some content on why the restaurant attracts Bloomington residents.

2. Menu

Menu page is a landing page with links to 12 categories in the menu. It has 12 tiles representing 12 categories. Each tile navigates to the category specific page when clicked on it. The tiles have pictures of a delicacy and a little description for the category it belongs to.

3. Submenu(Category specific Menu page)

This page has each item of the specific category listed in a table. Each item has a picture with a description of the item and a price for it. Every category specific menu has a side bar with links to other categories in the menu.

4. Order online

The restaurant has online delivery partners which are well established in the town. Since the online ordering system is already in place and works well the restaurant doesn't need a separate online order system. This menu item has a drop down menu which has links to four different external delivery websites.

5. Reservation

The reservation page is used to reserve a table in advance. There are two options to make a reservation. A customer can make a call on the number mentioned on the page or they can send an online request using the form on the web page. Upon receiving the customer request, restaurant calls to confirm the reservation.

6. Contact information

The contact page has the phone number, email address and address of the restaurant. Another section in this page has a form for customers to send comments to the restaurant through the website.

The footer contains links to the social media pages of the restaurant and an option to sign up for offer emails.
